Activity Information

Over the past five years, there have been significant changes and shifts in trends within the field of psychology, both in practice and training. This full-day conference will address topics such as exposure to different career paths; defining important aspects of supervision; how diversity and cultural humility applies to supervision and training; assess different clinical approaches; and special topics in trainees and the training program environment. The gathering of professionals across all stages of training will allow the sharing of expertise and promote the discussion of excellent practice while remaining resilient as demands on this field continue to grow exponentially.
